Principal's Message

The middle school students had their art exhibition this past Wednesday where they were able to present part of what they have learned in class. The seventh and eighth grades presented their pieces inspired by baroque and neoclassical art. They made building designs using classical architectural elements and took photographs recreating baroque scenes. The sixth grade group excelled with ink work from their basic art class. All of these works were framed thanks to donations from staff and parents. This exhibition had 5-year-old kindergarten student Bradley Santizo (above) as a guest. Bradley is a child with exceptional talent in art, which the school has embraced and made the space to develop. Ms. Santana sets aside time for support so that he could present his first individual art exhibition, which was a smashing success. Thank you to Board Chair Linda Miles-Adams and Phuong Nguyen from the Bullard Family Foundation for supporting his first show!
